Our Mission: We will strengthen our ability to meet the individual and evolving needs of those affected by domestic violence by investing in the growth of our people, deepening community engagement, and amplifying the voices of all survivors.

In recent years, the world has presented us with numerous challenges—including escalating gun violence and mental health crises, situations of social inequality and racial injustice, and horrifically violent wars abroad. Coupled with the staggering statistics on domestic violence, with 1 in 3 women and 1 in 4 men affected and an increase in frequency, severity, and complexity during the pandemic that hasn't yet stemmed, the terrain for vulnerable communities, especially survivors, is rocky and daunting. A long-time, dear friend of mine recently said "I don't know how you all go to work every day." Honestly, at the time, I answered "Some days we don't know either," but the truth is that when the world is so dark, it's important to look for the glimmers of light. At WC&S, our glimmers of light shine bright: in the resilience of our staff; the bravery of the survivors we serve; the opportunities for growth we've embraced to meet survivors' ever-evolving needs; and the partnerships we're honored to participate in to create systems change.

Glimmer of light: County-wide Intimate Partner Violence Reform Initiative

We are definitely more powerful working together, and in this case, we mean as a county. In response to a report by the Urban Institute, the Intimate Partner Violence Reform Initiative launched in May 2022 in Allegheny County. Led by County Executive Rich Fitzgerald, Pittsburgh Mayor Ed Gainey, President Judge Kimberly Clark, and DHS Director Erin Dalton, this initiative aims to revamp systems for survivors and perpetrators of IPV. It unites stakeholders from justice systems, victim services, healthcare, and community groups to bolster accessibility of support, streamline information sharing, and prevent severe harm. This ongoing initiative marks a crucial step in addressing the complexities of IPV, outlining plans for continued reform efforts.

For the first year, the leadership team set big goals, deciding to focus on: improving access and connection to protective and supportive systems, ensuring that information is available to decision-makers at the right time, creating common understanding of IPV and the systems we have that support survivors and people using violence, improving coordination and transparency, and focusing resources on those who are most likely to cause serious harm. In the first year, strategies have been implemented to address these focus areas. Specifically, the initiative conducted a retrospective IPV homicide review and used learnings from the review to begin development of a high-risk team to identify those who are most likely to cause serious harm. It supported justice system efforts that improved information available for judges at bail decisions and improved Protection from Abuse filing processes. The initiative worked on systems mapping to explore how survivors and those using abuse navigate different systems. It also prioritized expansion of the lethality assessment program in the county and training for municipal police officers. These accomplishments and strategic implementations highlight how it is only possible to create change at the county level when you bring together everyone who works within these systems – and when these folks are smart, dedicated, and committed to making positive change. WC&S has been honored to help drive this work and serve on every team and working group involved in this unprecedented initiative. We are proud of the work that's been done in year 1 and look forward to continuing working alongside such dedicated individuals.

Glimmer of light: High Risk Initiative

Leaving can often be the most dangerous time for a survivor as up to 75% of domestic violence homicides happen at or after the point of separation. In a dramatic demonstration of this increase in intensity, unfortunately, the number of IPV-related homicides in Allegheny County increased by 33% over pre-pandemic levels in 2022, including several that were horrifically violent. These factors led Women's Center & Shelter to re-think the way we work with survivors who are at the highest risk of being killed by their partner or ex-partner. These are survivors who are in the most lethal and immediate danger; survivors for whom shelter alone will not help them to be safe. Our response was to create a new identification, referral, and emergency case management system that combines the efforts of several of our departments into one team, who jump into action to work with external partners such as the Allegheny County's District Attorney's DV Unit, Pittsburgh Police DV Unit, Allegheny County's PFA Unit and other specialized court systems, the Fugitive Task Force, and other partners as needed to work with the survivor on extensive, creative, and individualized safety planning and follow-up. The survivor is empowered to stay in the driver's seat, but receives proactive, coordinated help navigating this new and dangerous landscape. In 2022, WC&S identified 18 women out of the 7,500+ survivors we served who we believe needed - and all of whom, indeed, welcomed - this intensified focus.

Glimmer of light: Helping Survivors with Substance Use

According to the American Society of Addiction Medicine (ASAM), studies have found that substance abuse is involved in 40% to 60% of the reported domestic violence incidents. Each survivor who has struggled with substance use has their own story, but a common theme is the role that power and control plays in the relationship with their partner. Substance use is sometimes forced on an abused partner to make them dependent on their partner or to discredit them if they were to reach out for help. When seeking treatment, survivors may face pushback from their abuser, including lack of support, refusal to help with childcare, or disparaging their recovery plans. Due to the stigma that surrounds survivors with substance use disorders, many avoid telling the people in the domestic violence programs designed to offer support to prevent their reputations from being damaged. Realizing how significant these struggles can be for a survivor, we added a position to our team, a Substance Use & Recovery Specialist, whose role is to work with survivors who are also battling a substance use issue. By reducing the stigma of substance use and providing the support and resources these survivors need, we can meet them where they're at and help them on their road to recovery, both from substance abuse and domestic violence.

At Women's Center & Shelter, we work to assist survivors and their children with compassion and in the most effective ways possible. We strive to create collaborative systems within and beyond our organization that proactively address the ever-changing struggles of the survivors we serve. Despite the troubling events happening around us, our focus remains on our mission and finding ways to support and empower survivors. We remain dedicated to being a source of encouragement during uncertain times, ensuring a safe environment and helping to build resilience among those we assist. As we navigate through these changes, our determination grows stronger, giving us hope that we're making a meaningful difference for survivors and their families, and providing light in an often-dark world.

Our hotline is available 24/7 and text & chat services are available from 9a-5p, Monday – Friday. Trained advocates provide support, safety planning, and explain options to anyone who has experienced domestic violence (DV) from a current or former partner or those concerned about a loved one or coworker.

Emergency Shelter

WC&S' Emergency Shelter provides safety for adults and children in immediate, lethal danger. Services include safety planning, goal planning, and advocacy for housing, career, health, & mental health. WC&S provides all basic essentials so that families can begin their journeys of healing. On-site housing for pets is also available.

Children's Advocacy Program (CAP)

Immediate Needs Coordination (INC) Program

INC meets the immediate emotional, psychological, and physical health & safety needs of clients using non-resident services. The INC Program also assists survivors with meeting their family's basic needs such as childcare, housing utility, food, and more.
